Gillard's dig raises hackles

SHE'S a part-time Kirribilli resident, but that didn't stop Prime Minister Julia Gillard having an apparent dig at the north shore on Wednesday.

Ms Gillard said Opposition leader Tony Abbott should "get himself off Sydney's north shore and go and talk to some real families and get himself in the real world". Soon outraged north shore residents began tweeting, phoned talkback shows and federal MP for Bradfield Paul Fletcher demanded an apology. Everyone including The Age's Michelle Grattan weighed in to the debate. "Are there NO Labor voters on the north shore?" she wrote.
